

Faculty In Residence

Student Housing is searching for a full time tenure or tenure track LMU faculty member to join the Faculty in Residence program.

This past year Dr. Cheryl Grills, Chair of Psychology, collaborated with Residence Life to establish a faculty in residence program for Loyola Marymount University. While writing the official proposal for the program, Dr. Grills became our first faculty in residence. She assisted in student staff training, opening weekend activities, attended student programs, engaged students in intellectual dialogues, consulted with Residence Life staff and made a positive impact on student life in the residence halls.

If you would like to make a positive impact too, please take a moment to look at the Faculty In Residence position description to view the positions responsibilities, expectations, qualifications and goals of the program.
